

POEM

*Today we lay her down to sleep,
And yet still another promise God has to keep.
He promises not to put no more on us than we can bear,
When trying times like this come He's right
there to show us he cares.
Aunt Mattie had suffered long enough,
Her road had gotten mighty rough,
God saw her light getting dim,
I'm not glad, but I'm satisfied He called her home with Him.
I know it's hard for all of us to understand,
I also know we all have got to leave this land.
As the time roll on and we are faced with those lonely days,
That's when we look to God and give Him all the praise.
Praise Him for she has gone to a better place,
Praise Him for all her pain has been erased.
She'll be missed by all of us,
Yet still in God we will trust.
Trust Him to help us through each day,
Trusting and knowing that He will make a way.
Lord, I'm depending on you,
To pull my family through.
We know you didn't make a mistake, for You are
to clever,
We need You now Lord, more than ever!*

POEM

I wished you were feeling good, but I know that you were not. You said I was your Doctor, but really I was your sweetheart. You are my sweetheart, too. I knew when I was talking to you and you were holding my hand that you was going to a better place. You got a better Doctor. You are with God now. I will miss you. Rest now, everyone in the family will miss you, Mattie.
