A Poem By Lora Collier

"My Coat"

I sit here alone and cold without my beautiful black Coat that fits me so perfectly. This Coat always kept me warm, helping me weather the storm, got me through the snow, and protected from the rain but now my bones ache and all I feel is pain without my Coat. See this Coat stuck with me through thick and thin. I guess you could call it something like my best friend.

Who would be so cruel to come in and steal my precious fine Coat. I remember it like yesterday when I first got this

Coat because we had so many good times and even though down thru the years this Coat has gotten a little worn, lost a few buttons, and doesn't look as new,

I still love this Coat because this Coat is my Husband Tyrone.

From Joy
